Note on Central Development Working Party (CDWP)

CDWP originated from a Development Board which was established in 1948 with the overall objective for achieving sustainable economic progress, overcoming backwardness to attain higher economic development. A permanent National Planning Board (NPB) was established in April, 1957 to promote economic and social development of the country. NPB was transformed to Planning Commission of Pakistan on 3rd June, 1959 with the main objective to promote welfare of the people with consultation of central and provincial governments as well as allied agencies or stakeholders.

The procedure for preparation and approval of development schemes was approved by the National Economic Council on 1st July, 1959 with the creation of Central Development Working Party (CDWP). The forum is headed by the Deputy Chairman Planning Commission is mandated to approve development projects up to certain limit fixed by the NEC from time to time. The provincial development projects that have foreign component or to be financed from federal PSDP or above the threshold competency of respective Provincial Development Working Parties (PDWPs) are also processed/considered by the CDWP and ECNEC depending on cost of the project.

In order to have holistic understanding and broader deliberations on development projects during the period, the composition of CDWP was reviewed and amended. Presently, the CDWP consists of 32 permanent members (excluding 06 Special Invitees) including heads of the Planning and Development Departments of Provincial Governments and Federal Ministries that have an overarching role in project scrutiny for achieving sustainable economic, social and scientific progress. The concerned federal sponsoring/ executing agencies are represented in the meetings by their respective heads to present and provide justification for their projects.

The Federal Ministries forward development projects to the Planning, Development and Special Initiative Division, costing above Rs1,000 million (present sanctioning limit of DDWP) for consideration and approval of CDWP. The Planning, Development and Special Initiative Division provides Secretarial services for the CDWP. The approval process and scrutiny is geared up to increase the efficiency and effectiveness of government development expenditure.

The development schemes exceeding Rs7,500 million are considered by the ECNEC for approval on the recommendation of CDWP while schemes costing below this financial threshold are approved by the CDWP to enable the relevant sponsoring agencies to accord administrative approval and pursue implementation in accordance with approved implementation plans.
